A NEW CLUB.
Pearl Street Juveniles Organize for Social Improvement.

Norwich is a club city and the spirit of organization extends even to juveniles. On Saturday, the local city-club was formed, a business meeting was held, officers elected, and a banquet served. There is no boy over ten in it, but they did not need any adult assistance in getting together and doing business in a formal way. They shrink from publicity just as the adult clubs do, and have a confirmed notion that their business is strictly private. They lend their support to the national game and such sports as build up the physical and tend to healthy development. They own their own club house and have started off most promisingly.
